

FCC Commissioners
The Federal Communications Commission RE: Docket 04-435
445 12th Street, SW
Washington, DC 20554

Dear FCC Commissioners ,

I am writing to voice my concerns about the FCC's proposal to relax the restrictions on the use of cell phones on airplanes in flight.

There is no hard evidence that cell phone use doesn't interfere with navigational instruments. In fact the airlines have been telling the traveling public that cell phone use is hazardous to navigation systems. Was the restrictions kist am effort to get the public to use phones that were available by private companies? The introduction of cell phone use in the cabin will not only increase tension among passengers, it will compromise flight attendants' ability to maintain order in an emergency. Cell phone use could also enable terrorists to coordinate a plan of action more effectively. Additionally cell phone use will interfere with passengers ability to read, contemplate or do other things without anoying, loud discussions of other passengers.

Please leave the current rules in effect.

Sincerely,

Albert sterman
